BEER DESCRIPTION: A tribute beer brewed to honor the memory of our fallen soldier Columbus (Brewery Kitten nick named Mongo) who used each of 9 lives in his short (but brazen) ten months on this planet. Let's just say the little dude lived a hard life. Only, he wasn't so little. In fact he was the largest of 5 kittens born at the brewery in 2009. Mongo was so large in fact that his brothers and sisters kicked him out of the litter. I told you dude had it rough.

DESCRIPTION AND INFORMATION:

AROMA- Columbus was spawned by Amarillo and Cascade (our first kittens at the brewery). As such, we kept the naming in the hop family and decided the beer should really feature a bunch of these hops. As such, there is a massive, almost unmistakable resinous aroma in the beer created by the judicious use of Columbus, Amarillo and Cascade hops.

TASTE- Like most double IPA styled beers the taste of hops that linger for days is at work in this beer. We like the way hops weave in and out of what little malt you can taste in this beer. Certainly, we brewed this as a hop forward beer and think one sip you'll agree with us.

COLOR- Hazy Yellow like an English Submarine

O.G.- 1.080

FINISH- Dry with some malted barley sweetness in the finish of the beer.

BODY- Medium to medium high body. Certainly not a "small" beer by any stretch of the imagination yet it's remarkably easy to drink, a true stealth beer if there ever was one.

ABV- 8.5%

HOPS- Columbus, Amarillo, Centennial, Cascade and Simcoe

SUGGESTED SERVING TEMPERATURE- 46-52F
